	How do you get people to know about and use any library resource? Put it front and center where people will see and use it. Where is that, you ask? It's where the people are: at your library's programs.
	This session does four things:
	1. Encourages you to consider what an eresource is broadly, 2. Presents program ideas that are intelligently designed to promote use of the library's online resources, 3. Presents easy ways for existing programs to evolve support for your digital services,
	4. Encourages you to leverage your and your library's own special adaptations!
